Don Commends UNAAB VC

The recent developmental initiative of the administration of Professor Oluwafemi Olaiya Balogun as the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Agriculture, Abeokuta, has been commended as visionary and mind-boggling.

Professor Layi Adeola of the Department of Animal Sciences, Purdue University, Indiana, USA, made this comment during a Project Tour of the University, in company of the Vice-Chancellor and other officials of the University.

The visiting American don who was taken round projects at the Centre for Human Resources Development, 'CENHURD Village' and on the Permanent Site could not hide his admiration for the bold approach the current Management has adopted in providing the required condition for a modern University environment.

Obviously impressed, of the speed at which the University is upgrading infrastructure and acquiring facilities, Prof. Adeola said "this is well in advance of other Universities and it is highly commendable".

According to Professor Adeola, UNAAB is blazing a pacesetter trail on the responsibilities scale of Universities, noting that that the development will not only benefit students, but communities within the catchment of the University.

He advised the University to explore the possibility of organising short-time training programmes to effectively put its state of the art facilities and equipment to good use for increased revenue generation and also promote skill acquisition by the general public.

The Vice-Chancellor, Professor Balogun assured the visitor that preparations were at advanced level to transform CENHURD to a full-fledged Institute, while the University's Institute of Food Security, Environmental Resources and Agricultural Research (IFSERAR), will take-off soon.

The Vice-Chancellor said the development initiative was inspired by the desire to make the University a model in the country and also competitively reposition it for current global challenges.

of Technology, Akure, (FUTA), Professor Adebisi Balogun made the call at the maiden Annual Lecture and the Awards Ceremony of the National Association of Academic Technologist (NAAT), UNAAB Branch, held at the Julius Okojie Lecture Theatre Complex.

Chief Osayemi who was the Chairman of the occasion had in his remarks set the ball rolling, lamenting that the nation was far from utilizing its economic potentials compared to developing economies like Malaysia.

He noted with dismay that Malaysia through the oil palm seeds it took from Nigeria some years ago had been able to turn around its economy for good while its benefactor (Nigeria) was yet to realize the benefits of her oil palm seeds and the potentials of other natural endowments.

Chief Osayemi, an industrialist, charged Government to revert to the failed to motivate and boost indigenous technology.

He decried a situation where government and other stakeholders are channeling and diverting resources meant for small and medium scale industries only to "high sounding industries" as a misplaced priority, which might be counter-productive at the end of the day.

According to him, "there's no way small scale industries can survive without indigenous technology. If we are concentrating efforts only on our high sounding industries, we may be far away from development".

Prof. Balogun who commended NAAT, UNAAB branch for the timeliness of the Lecture pointed out that the role of Technologists was crucial to nation building.

He, however, frowned at NAAT romance with the Non-Teaching Staff Unions under the umbrella of Joint Action Congress (JAC) as injurious to its attaining high level professionalism.

The Vice-Chancellor said NAAT was more of Academic Staff, as Technologists and Researchers are partners in progress and their roles are complementary.

Earlier in his speech, the Vice-Chancellor, University of Agriculture, Abeokuta (UNAAB) Professor Oluwafemi Olaiya Balogun described members of the National Association of Academic Technologist (NAAT) as major stakeholders in the smooth running of the University system.

Professor Balogun encouraged indigenous technology and frowned at excessive copying and importation of foreign technologies.

On his part, the National President of the Association, Dr. Ijagbone represented by Mr. J.O. Amira urged all stakeholders and Technologist to come together for a better appreciation of the profession.

The occasion also witnessed presentation of Meritorious Awards to outstanding personalities, where the Administrator, Works & Services of the University, Professor Samuel Adejigbe bagged Technologist of Repute award.

Other categories of Awards went to individuals and corporate organizations. Elder 'Yemi Akinwonmi received an award of excellence in Building industry category, while RATTAWU National President, Comrade Yemisi Bamgbose was awarded for Active Unionism.

Winelight Analytical Systems Limited, Animal Care Services, National Salt Company of Nigeria, Win-teck Nigeria Limited and Steve Nicholas Nigeria Limited, also received awards.

Also at the ceremony, the Vice-Chancellor of the University, Professor Olaiya Balogun unveiled the model of the proposed new secretariat of the association.
